Common Core Anchor Standards Specific to Primary Sources

- CCSS.ELA-LITERACY.RH.1
Cite specific textual evidence to support analysis of primary and secondary sources, attending to such features as the date and origin of the information.
- CCSS.ELA-LITERACY.RH.2
Determine the central ideas or information of a primary or secondary source; provide an accurate summary of how key events or ideas develop over the course of the text.
- CCSS.ELA-LITERACY.RH.6
Compare the point of view of two or more authors for how they treat the same or similar topics, including which details they include and emphasize in their respective accounts.
- CCSS.ELA-LITERACY.RH.9
Compare and contrast treatments of the same topic in several primary and secondary sources. <http://www.corestandards.org/ELA-Literacy/RH/9-10/>

Core Student Competencies

- Compare perspectives across time and culture
- Process and critique information in various formats and media
- Develop coherent understanding
- Answer questions
- Solve problems
- Sustain focus in challenging reading and writing tasks
- Evaluate claims, arguments, evidence
- Analyze relationship between primary & secondary sources on same topic
- Analyze, reflect, research

MALCOLM X'S EULOGY delivered by Ossie Davis, Faith Temple Church Of God

February 27,1965

It is not in the memory of man that this beleaguered, unfortunate, but nonetheless proud community has found a braver, more gallant young champion than this Afro-American who lies before us - unconquered still. I say the word again, as he would want me to: Afro-American - Afro-American Malcolm, who was a master, was most meticulous in his use of words. Nobody knew better than he the power words have over minds of men. Malcolm had stopped being a 'Negro' years ago. It had become too small, too puny, too weak a word for him. Malcolm was bigger than that. Malcolm had become an Afro-American and he wanted - so desperately - that we, that all his people, would become Afro-Americans too.

Why use primary sources?

Complexify understanding

Initiate authentic inquiry-based learning

Teach critical thinking

Improve curriculum

Develop student independence & persistence

What do you do with primary sources?

- Photo analysis
 - individually/sets
 - paired with text/art
- Compare historical and modern sources
- Explore multi-format text sets on one issue
- Trace development of issue over time in one or more formats
- Use excerpts to illustrate concepts or provide context
- Annotate & dialogue about (written or oral)
- Compare contradictory sources to develop insight & understanding
- Grapple with language and what it means
- Form questions
- Uncover psychological elements that transcend cultures & shape documents

TEACHER'S GUIDE

ANALYZING PHOTOGRAPHS & PRINTS

Guide students with the sample questions as they respond to the primary source. Encourage them to go back and forth between the columns; there is no correct order.

OBSERVE

Have students identify and note details.

Sample Questions:

- Describe what you see. · What do you notice first?
- What people and objects are shown? · How are they arranged? · What is the physical setting?
 - What, if any, words do you see? · What other details can you see?

REFLECT

Encourage students to generate and test hypotheses about the image.

- Why do you think this image was made? · What's happening in the image? · When do you think it was made? · Who do you think was the audience for this image? · What tools were used to create this?
- What can you learn from examining this image? · What's missing from this image? · If someone made this today, what would be different? · What would be the same?

QUESTION

Have students ask questions to lead to more observations and reflections.

- What do you wonder about...
- who? · what? · when? · where? · why? · how?

FURTHER INVESTIGATION

Help students to identify questions appropriate for further investigation, and to develop a research strategy for finding answers.

Sample Question: What more do you want to know, and how can you find out?

A few follow-up activity ideas:

Beginning
Write a caption for the image.

Intermediate
Select an image. Predict what will happen one minute after the scene shown in the image. One hour after? Explain the reasoning behind your predictions.

Advanced
Have students expand or alter textbook or other printed explanations of history based on images they study.

 Liberty Park + bench
 Uncle Sam - skinny
 "Enemy Alien" - fat
 Snake
 snail
 "Enemy Alien" takes up most of bench + stepping on U.S.'s feet closed eyes while U.S.'s eyes are open

FURTHER INVESTIGATION

REFLECT

Symbols of liberty are abundant but ignored by the "Enemy Alien" - unless he's crowding them out - fatal in bkld
 → seems oblivious to everything but himself - largest thing in the cartoon - most important
 → connected to "Enemy Alien" maybe to suggest laziness/sloth (snail) or evil (snake) - or danger
 → implies threat of taking over
 → implies U.S. citizens need to be watchful + suspicious of immigrants.

QUESTION

What specific threats did the U.S. face as a result of "undesirable immigrants"?
 Were they legitimate concerns or just fears w/out a basis?
 What do the cross + skull + crossbones symbolize?
 Was this "Enemy Alien" supposed to represent a specific group of immigrants?

What is Propaganda?

Scholars, journalists, and politicians have long argued about how to properly define propaganda and distinguish it from other forms of mass communication. Propaganda is biased information designed to shape public opinion and behavior.

The word comes from Latin and originally referred to the biological reproduction of flora and fauna, that is, to the propagation of plants and animals. It took on new Research Question: Why are giant pandas endangered?

By: Daniel Delawder

1: "Giant Pandas, Giant Panda Pictures, Giant Panda Facts - National Geographic." Animals - Animal Pictures - Wild Animal Facts - Nat Geo Wild - National Geographic. Web, 20 Jan. 2012. Giant panda eating habitats and cool facts.

The Giant panda has a large appetite for bamboo; it takes nearly 28 pounds of bamboo to satisfy a giant panda's dietary needs. Wild pandas often live in remote mountain regions in central China that provide cool and wet bamboo forests. Only about 1,000 giant pandas are left in the wild and 100 pandas live in zoos. This article states facts about the panda's diet; without an adequate consumption of bamboo daily, the giant panda won't meet its dietary needs.

2: "WWF - Giant Panda - Overview." Wildlife Conservation, Endangered Species Conservation. Web, 20 Jan. 2012. Giant panda eating habitats and cool facts.

Severe threats from humans have reduced the amount of giant pandas in the world, fewer than 1,600 remain. Giant pandas need to live in Temperate Broadleaf and Mixed Forests of Southwest China, where plenty of Bamboo is available. Giant Pandas play an important role in bamboo forests where they enhance the growth of vegetation by spreading seeds. This article portrays the importance of giant pandas in their natural habitat. This article also discusses human damage to the giant panda habitat that reduced the amount of giant pandas in the world.

3: "Giant Panda Facts - National Zoo|FONZ." Welcome to the National Zoo|FONZ Website - National Zoo|FONZ. Web, 20 Jan. 2012.

Giant pandas live in the mountain ranges in central China, in Sichuan, Shaanxi and Gansu Provinces. They used to live in lowland areas, but farming, forest clearing and other developments now restrict giant pandas to the mountains. Scientist report pandas live as long as 35 years. At birth the panda is helpless and it takes the mother's considerable effort to raise the cub into an adult giant panda. This article discusses the harmful effects of farming, forest clearing and other human developments upon the endangerment of giant pandas.

Great for yearlong STEM projects!

Summary

Estimating and mapping suitable habitat play a critical role in conservation planning and policy. But if assumptions about ecological needs are wrong, maps with misidentified suitable habitat will misguide conservation action. Therefore we need to take precautions when dealing with bans in the government and dealing with endangered species. In this article they use an information-theoretic approach to analyze the largest, landscape-level dataset on panda habitat use to date, and challenge the prevailing wisdom about panda habitat needs. This article shows that pandas are associated with old-growth forest more than with any ecological variable other than bamboo. Other factors traditionally used in panda habitat models, such as topographic slope, are less important according to this article. The article suggests that their findings are disparate from previous research in part because their research was conducted over a larger ecological scale than previous research conducted over more circumscribed areas within individual reserves. Thus, extrapolating from habitat studies on small scales to conservation planning on large scales may entail some risk. As the Chinese government is considering the renewal of its logging ban, it should take heed of the panda's dependency on old growth. (Bolded because it was the conclusion)

SOME WERE NEIGHBORS

Millions of ordinary people witnessed the crimes of the Holocaust—in the countryside and city squares, in stores and schools, in homes and workplaces. Across Europe, the Nazis found countless willing helpers who collaborated or were complicit in their crimes. What motives and pressures led so many individuals to abandon their fellow human beings? Why did others make the choice to help?

1. Think about the kinds of primary sources that are likely to exist for your topic.
2. Identify which resources are most likely to have them.
3. Brainstorm some search terms (refer to your articles for names of events, people, places, legislation).
4. Decide where you will look and where your partner will look (sit next to each other and confer as you go - about what you find and how it connects).
5. Use a variety of search terms.

Search term site:.edu OR site:.gov OR site:.org

6. When you find one, examine it closely and figure out how it connects to your article. Discuss it with your partner. You only want sources with strong connections.
7. Save each source in its highest resolution to your Home H: Drive. (Thumbnails pixelate so avoid them.)
8. Cite your sources as you go in a Works Cited document. Cite the actual source and not the database citation.

9. Once you find one type of primary source look for a different type of format so you get a variety. Talk to your partner about what you found to avoid over reliance on one type of source (i.e., photos).
10. Save each source in its highest resolution to your Home H: Drive. (Thumbnails pixelate so avoid them.)

Teen Tips for Better Online Group Work & Discussions

adapted from the MSDE Online Teaching In Maryland Course module 2.2.4 "Online Response Skills"

Online classes require you to interact with people in a more formal way and work with partners and groups in different ways. Sometimes people you are depending on may not do their part the way you think they should. Or they might have a different opinion than you do. You might feel like you need to say something, but not be sure what to say. These response skills are particularly helpful in dealing with difficult situations.

A. Use positive phrasing. (Organize your words in a positive way.)

Be positive whenever possible. One type of verbal skill, called positive phrasing, suggests possible choices, sounds helpful and encouraging, and stresses positive actions that can lead to positive consequences.

Examples of Negative/Positive Phrasing:

Negative Phrasing	Positive Phrasing
Don't wait until the last minute to do your part of the group project.	Please post your part of the group project by Wednesday.
Be negative.	Be positive.
With all those spelling errors.	Please use a spell checker before you post.

Reflection Questions for Journal Entry 1

By now, you should understand how good questions can open your perspective on an issue – even if you don't have answers to the questions. Please answer the following questions in your journal reflection. Only you, Mr. Marley, and Mrs. Dyar will see your answers so please be honest. Your post should be 150 words and meet the standards of the Contemporary World Studies Discussion Rubric.

What have you learned about forming good questions?

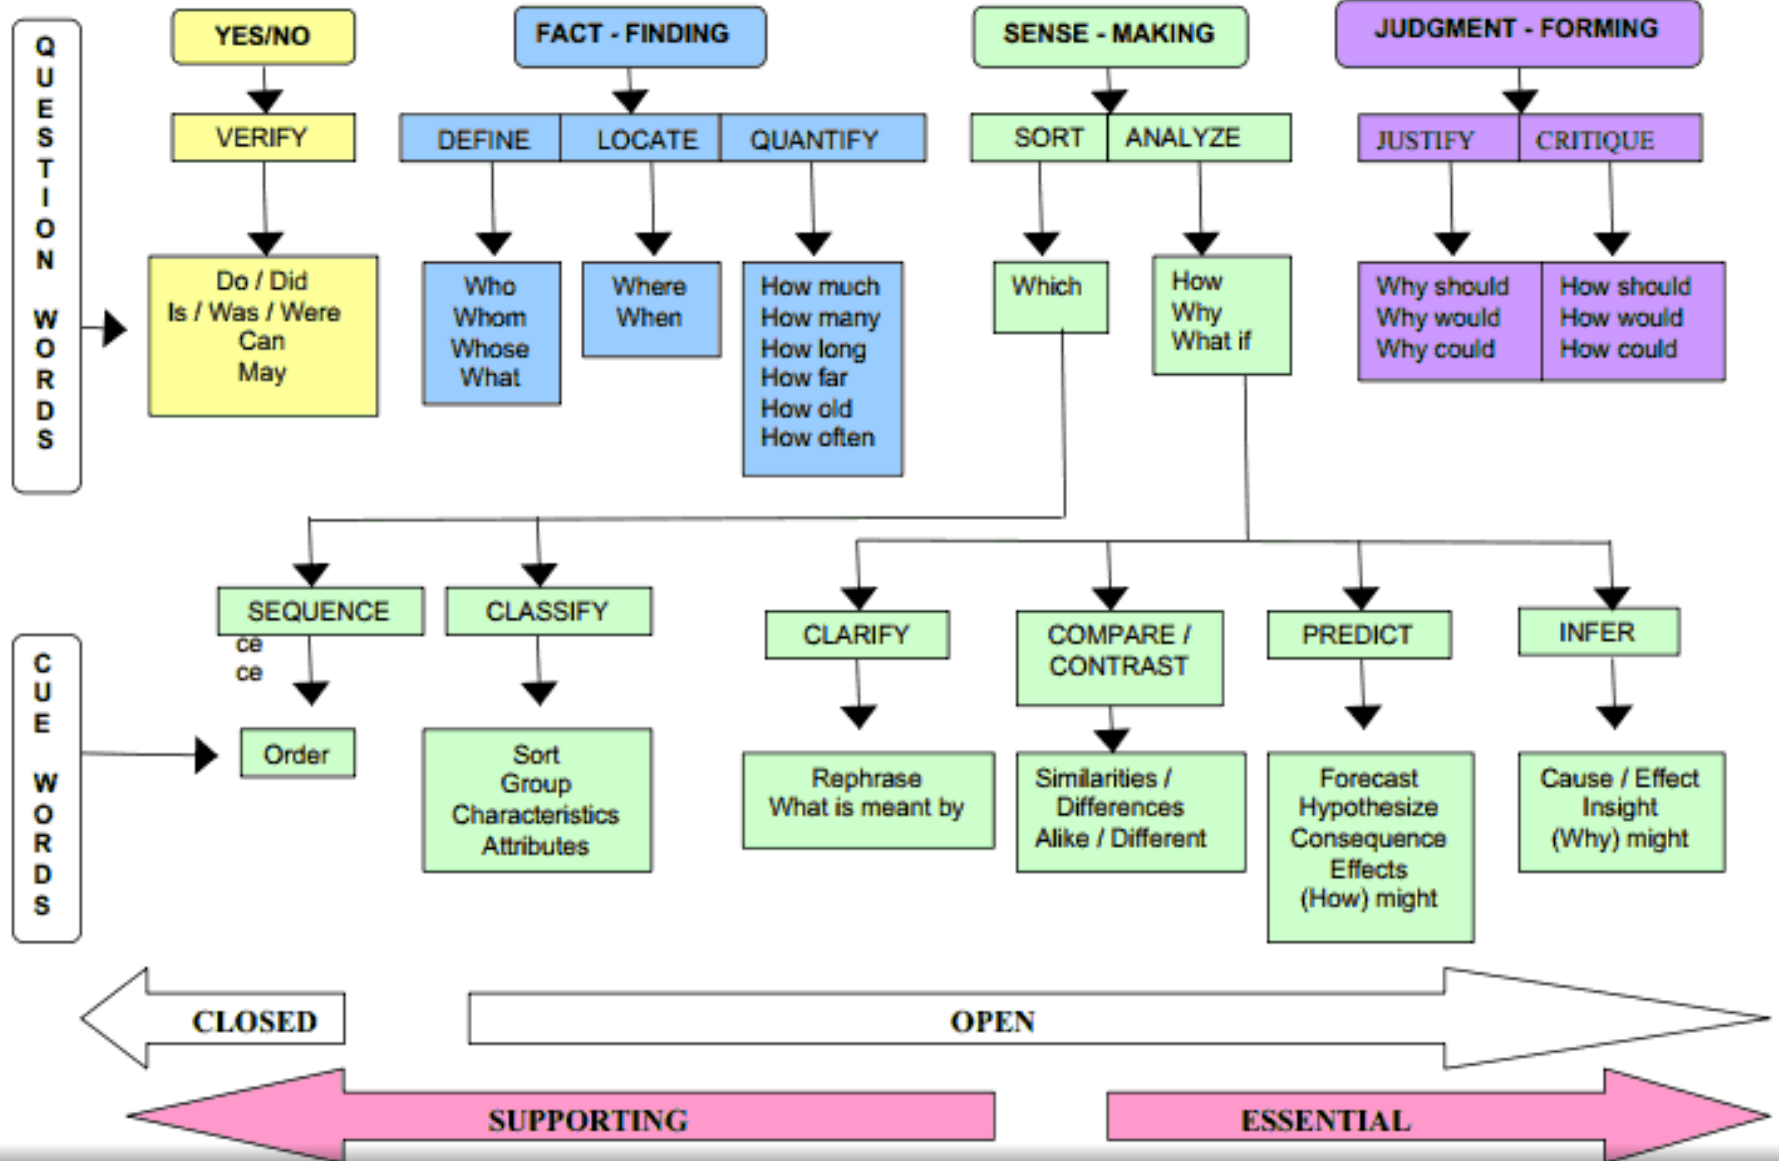

What was easiest about forming good questions? Why?

What was most difficult about forming good questions? Why?

How can the questions the class formed help you understand immigration and border security issues better?

How useful were the video clips in helping you form good questions? Explain.

Tips for Success

- Start small – lesson hook or extension
- Choose a flexible teaching partner & communicate
- Solicit teacher and student feedback
- Incorporate manipulatives
- Experiment with no, low, and high tech
- Keep groups small: 2-3
- Couch it in lots of student talk
- Scaffold it & provide a task analysis or checklist
- Use magnifying glasses
- Richer resources = richer discussions
- Provide strong models
- Track the thinking
- Make it metacognitive
- Show teachers what's been done with others & rework it OR start fresh
- Evaluate student work for learning - revise as you go
- Embed analysis within instruction

How do you know they're learning?

- Articulate process, ideas, reactions
- Comment on the gap between their experience and the expectation
- Engage with issue and discuss thoughts & feelings about it
- Adopt a perspective
- Identify with characters
- Zoom in on details
- Hyperfocus
- Form relevant questions
- Connect ideas across formats
- Use supporting details appropriately
- Build their own comparisons: "It's like"
- Note pattern of errors and/or discoveries
- Apply skills to new sources (transfer)
- Reflect on content and process
